Girls Steal Rig; Take "Joy Ride"

GIVE OFFICERS IN AUTO MERRY CHASE

Trio of Bold Females Gets Horse and Buggy Belonging to Keene Man at Third St. Hitching Rack and Drives Away--Rig Located at Brown Farm an Hour Later but Girls Make Escape Without Revealing Identity

Three girls, whose identities have so far not been determined, appropriated a horse and buggy, which had been tied at the Third street hitching rack, at about 10 o'clock Friday night and enjoyed a "joy ride." The rig was the property of Frank Leach of near Keene, who appeared on the scene just as the rio drove away but not in time to stop them. He at once notified the police, who found the stolen rig, after an hour 's search, in a lane at the Brown farm, just south of the city.

Drive into Country.

Mr. Leach had driven to the city to spend the evening and as he was approaching the rack where he had tied his horse, was not al ittle surprise to see three girls in the buggy, just driving away. They lost little time in getting out of his reach so he notified the police. Lieut. Hankins and Officer Fretague secured an auto and made a hurried search over the city without finding any trace of the rig. They then decided that the girls might have driven into the country and upon reaching the Brown farm, found the horse tied to a fence near the house.

Go to River Camp?

The animal showed that it had been driven hard, being covered with sweat. The rig was driven back to the city and turned over to the owner. Just what had become of the "joy riders" could not be learned. It is thought that they may have been bound for a camp down the river and decided to steal a ride instead of walking. The police will make an investigation with the view of learning the identity of the bold thieves.

SUIT FOR MONEY

Suit for $47 23 alleged to be due on account, was fied in Squire C R Bell's court Friday by Chas. E Underwood vs Mike Metcurio

An Insect is Destroying Shade Trees

An insect, known as the cottony maple scale, is said to be playing havoc with the shade trees of this city and unless strenuous steps are taken promptly, many of trees will be totally ruined. Several days ago, Fred Mizer of Cambridge street noticed that something was at work on the shade trees of E. Walnut street and upon making an investigation, found a small insect on the leaves.. He at once sent a specimen to the state experiment station at Wooster and last evening received a reply, informing him of the nature of the insect as well as a recipe for its extermination. . . . . .

Makes Rapid Process.

This is the first time the scale has been noticed in this city. If feeds upon the leaves of a tree and in a short time makes rapid progress from limb to limb. In the winter, the scale is to be found in the crevices of the bark. Within the past several weeks, it has extended its operations from East Walnut street out several squares on Cambridge street.

Advise Spraying.

The experiment station authorities advise that the trees be sprayed thoroughly with kerosene emulsion, diluted with 12 to 15 parts water. The recipe for the emulsion - laundry soap (chipped) one-half pounds; kerosene (coal oil) two gallons, water (perferably soft and free from dirt) one gallon.

Still No Trace of Williams

No trace of the whereabouts of H D Wiliams, the Spring Mountain farmer has been found. Williams has now been missing since last Monday and in spite of the efforts of his relatives to find him by means of telephone messages all over the state have been unavailing. The police have been on the lookout constantly and officials of neighboring towns and cities have been notified to watch for him.

The family is still of the opinion that he has been affected by the extreme heat and is wandering about aimlessly

Masons Install Beautiful New Electric Sign

Workmen Friday completed the installation of a beautiful electric sign which has been purchased by the local Masonic lodge to be placed in front of their hall in the old Opera house block. The sign is several feet high and reveals three emblems, one of the Masonic another of the Knights Templar and the third that of the local chapter. The whole is lighted from within by electricity and presents a very neat and beautiful appearance, attracting quite a little attention last evening when it was lighted up for the first time.

Two Places are Raided by Police

Officers Search M.and A. Restaurant and the Mission Billiard Rooms Without Finding any Booze--Were Parties Tipped Off?

The M. & A. restaurant and the Mission billiard room and restaurant were raided by the police at 8 o'clock Friday evening but nothing in the way of intoxicants was to be found. The officers searched both buildings from second floor to basement.

The failure of the officers to find any "evidence," according to general opinion last evening, was due to the fact that, in some manner, someone handed out a straight tip on what was coming. This opinion is apparently strengthened by a rumor that was going the rounds as early as yesterday afternoon that the raid would be made. In addition, it was learned last evening that some "goods" was moved during the afternoon

The Entire Force

The entire police force, Chief Williams, Lieut Hankins and Officers Gorman, Miller, Fretague, and Sharp had hand in the search. No sooner had the officers quietly started work than a good sized crowd of the curious surrounded both places. However it was not necessary to call a dray to remove the findings. The M & A. is conducted by Abbott & Hull and the Mission by Johnston & Bright

Have Trouble Securing Sewer Right-of-Way

WEST LAFAYETTE COUNCIL AWARDS CONTRACT EXCLUSIVE OF OPEN DITCH WORK

The contract for constructing the storm water sewer at West Lafayette, exclusive of the open ditch excavation, was awarded to Trainor & Scanlon of Huntington W. Va., by the village council at a special meeting Friday evening. The open ditch was held up owing to the fact that council is encountering some difficulty in securing the necessary right-of-way. Prior to letting the contract, the sewer bonds were delivered to the purchaser, the West Lafayette bank and the money turned into the municipal funds, $20,000 to the special storm sewer fund and $448.35, premium and accured interest, to the sinking fund.

Start Within 10 Days

Trainor & Scanlon are expected to begin work on the sewer within ten days and are given four months' time in which to complete the job.

The open ditch is being held up by council's inability to secure a right of way over land by Seth Shaw and Isaac Shaw. The latter attended the council meeting and finally decided that he should be paid $800 for the rights

TREASURER LEVIES UPON THE PROPERTY IN SCHAEFFER CAFE

To Satisfy Aikin Tax Claim Held by County Against Proprietor--Schaefer Dissapears Without Providing Necessary Bond in Injunction Suit to Restrain Collection

The property of Floyd Schaefer, consisting of fixtures etc., in his cafe, located in the Oak hotel building on Hickory street, was levied upon by County Treasurer George Stillinger and Deputy John Callahan Friday afternoon to satisfy the claim against the former in the way of Aikin tax and penalty, amounting to $1,076,-75. Schaefer is the only one of the nine dealers, against whom the Aikin tax was certified last Tuesday, who failed to secure a temporary restraining order against its collection.

DISAPPERS FROM CITY.

Although Schaefer gave instructions to his attorney Jos L. McDowell to file an injunction suit for him Thursday afternoon, instead of furnishing the bond, necessary to secure the temporary restraining order from Judge Nicholas, he disappeared. Friday it was stated that he had left the city and his whereabouts were a mystery

Proceed to Levy.

Not being restrained by an order from court, Treasurer Stillinger proceeded to levy upon Schaefer's goods Friday afternoon to satisfy the claim the county has against him. When Deputy Callahan went to the Oak hotel cafe, he found the place closed. The officer made his way into the room through a window, however, and secured an itemized list of the contents.

Lapps own Building.

Unless Schaefer returns and secures a restraining order from the court Treasurer Stillinger will sell the goods levied upon and raise as much of the claim as possible. The remainder will have to be paid by John and Henry Lapp, owners of the Oak hotel building, in which the business was conducted

School Book Firms Have Neat Scheme

Columbus, July 14.—The big publishing firms have framed up a scheme to beat the order of the state school book commission, requiring school books to be sold in Ohio at 40 per cent off the list price

The plan is to issue a special edition of text books for Ohio, then raise the list price to such a figure that when the 40 per cent is deducted the selling price will actually be no lower than what it has been in the past

The Same Price

So, in spite of the fact that technically the books will be sold at 40 per cent off, in compliance with the order of the commission, the school book trust will get just as much for its books from the people of Ohio in the future as in the past

At least that is what they count on. Assistant Secretary of State J. H. Secrest says this palpable subterfuge to technically comply with the order and at the same time utterly defeat its avowed purpose will fail. He said that if this scheme is attempted the commission will stop the companies entering into it from selling its product in the state

News Comes Friday

The information that the big companies were preparing to get out an Ohio edition of books with the list prices boosted to enable the 40 per cent cut to be made without really changing the selling prices was received Friday at the state school commissioner's office

The big companies have been getting in their work with boards of education all over the state having been endeavoring to create the impression that the recent ruling of the commissioners will work havoc to the schools preventing them from getting the latest books at the highest price

General Exposition Of Sunday's Lesson.

Superintendent Teacher Training Department

Manasseh's Wickedness and Penitence.

2 Chron. 33:1-20

A certain preacher had been in the habit of praying for "the rulers of our country, the public officials." His attention was called to the fact that our officials were not "rulers" but public servants."

We believe that the faults of Manasseh, as a king, should be studied in relation to composite kingship of the people.

It is said that Manasseh re established "worship wrongly directed," profaned places of worship with licentious and cruel practices; that he practiced augury, used enchantments, practiced sorcery, dealt with them that had familiar spirits, and with wizards; in other words he encouraged ignorance and superstition. "He seduced Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that they did evil more than did the nations whom Jehovah destroyed before the children of Israel."

This type of rulership resulted in a "foreign invasion which threatened the nation's downfall."

Manasseh was brought to his knees before God after he had been taken captive. "And when he was in distress, he besought Jehovah, his God, and humbled himself greatly."

Do these same faults appear in the composite kingship of the people, worship wrongly directed which is practical idolitry?

Misuse and disuse of places of worship? Ignorance and superstition? Public officials seduced to do evil?

If these faults are prevalent we may well fear the foreign invasion of recent years. From this standpoint the immigration question is of supreme significance.

The distress that has come upon us, as a people, has come upon us by way of our faults. The composite kingship of this nation should seek Jehovah its God and humble itself greatly before Him.

Conscience and religious conviction in the choice and election of public servants needs to be cultivated. If these two elements are not present among the people they will seldom appear among public officials. The official who attributes his election to a conscienceless, irreligious political machine, will resent and ignore the appeal of the people who are interested in the moral progress of the community.

To do otherwise means their "political funeral." Many of us believe that this is a time of "moral progressiveness" in our land; when this element "gets together," and makes itself responsible for the election of public officials a new and a better day will have dawned.

Let it not be forgotten that of the people is formed the "composite kingship" of our land.

NO DATE SET FOR M'NAMARA TRIAL

Counsel Demands Trial Be Arranged For Next December.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 14.—The district attorney and counsel for the McNamara brothers did not enter the proposed conference as to the time for the trial of the alleged dynamiters, but went into court prepared to argue the matter vigorously.

The district attorney maintained that the trial should begin by Aug. 1. Counsel for the McNamaras were opposed to any trial before Dec. 1.

General Walter Bordwell, it is said, will compromise the matter by setting the trial for September or October.

AUTOMOBILE TRUST PLANNED

New York, July 14.—Automobile and financial interests are interested in a rumor to the effect that a gigantic merger of motor car manufacturers is being effected with the result that three largest concerns of automobile builders and the largest tire combination may shortly be controlled by a holding company. The concerns said to interested are the General Motors company, the United States Motor company, the Studebaker interests, including the E-M-F and Flanders plants at Detroit and the United States Tire company. Young Twirler who May Prove to be Find of Season

New York, July 14.—In figuring on the star twirlers this season the official scorer had better keep an eye out for Ray Fisher of the New York Americans. Early in the spring Manager Hal Chase predicted that Fisher would be one of the greatest young twirlers of the year. On several occasions this year he got away to a bad start, but in the second battle with the Detroit Tigers recently the youngster flashed across the baseball sky like a meteor and pitched one of the best twirled games of the season. Though the Tigers scratched him through nine long innings, no two of them coming in a single round. Not alone that, but he made two hits. He will be heard from later.

How He Won the Votes.

A physician in a small town wanted to be mayor. Politicians told him he had no chance—the machine was against him. A few days before the election he printed the following card in the paper:

"To the People of Bingtown—I am getting old and have decided that before I die I would like to be mayor of Bingtown. I have no particular platform to run on except that I want the office. I have lived here forty years, have paid my taxes without a murmur, collected what I could and forgiven and forgotten many omissions. If I am not elected I will publish in the Bingtown Herald what I know about people in this community."

When the votes were counted the old doctor received all but three, and those three were cast by people who had moved into the town that spring.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Property Man Knew.

An English actor tells a good story of the old days of the touring fitup companies. They were at Oldham playing a melodrama called "Current Cash." One of the properties essential to the piece was a light rowing scull, with which the hero had to push himself off into the stream. When the company reached Oldham the oar was missing, but the property man promised to have one ready for the evening's performance, says the Pall Mall Gazette. That afternoon, with evident pride, he produced from the sacred recesses of his room a real human skull, and when it was pointed out to him that it was hardly what was required he declared in haughty tones:

"If that skull's good enough for 'Hamlet' it ought to be good enough for a piece like 'Current Cash.'"

Star Pitcher Whose Great Speed Seems to be Missing

Washington, July 14. Local baseball critics say that Walter Johnson, the star twirler of the Washington team, has changed his whole style of pitching, thus making strikeouts fewer. Formerly Johnson would not pitch more than two or three curve balls during a game when he was at his best. Now he is curving almost every other one, besides resorting to a change of pace frequently. But that speed with which the ball fairly hopped over the plate is sadly missing.

DANIEL GUGGENHEIM.

A Central Figure in Alaska Land Case.

CONTROLLER BAY LANDS

Said to Be Wanted as Terminus For Roads From Guggenheim Mines.

Washington, July 14. Daniel Guggenheim, one of the leading members of the Morgan-Guggenheim combination, is a central figure in the controversy now raging over the Alaskan mineral lands and the Controller bay property. The alleged "Dick to Dick" letter appears to have been written by Richard S. Ryan, an alleged secret agent of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate, to Richard A. Ballinger when secretary of the interior, declaring that he (Ryan) had asked Charles P. Taft to speak to his brother, President Taft, about the Controller bay claims in Alaska and that following this the president made no further objection to Ryan's claim. Controller bay is said to be wanted as a terminus for railroads from the Guggenheim mine properties in Alaska.

She Will not Hang

Angelina Napolitano's Will Be Given Life Imprisonment.

Ottawa, Ont., July 14.—Angelina Napolitano will not hang. The official announcement of the cabinet's recommendation to the deputy governor general will probably not be made until the order in council is signed by Sir Louis Davies some days hence, but the decision of the cabinet was reached today on the advice of the minister of justice, and so the woman of the Canadian Soo., who killed her husband under circumstances, it is said, of great provocation is saved from the gallows.

Her sentence will be commuted to life imprisonment and she will probably be released on parole within a very reasonable period.

Angelina Napolitano, an Italian woman 28 years old, killed her husband, Pietro Napolitano, Easter Sunday at their home in "Little Italy," in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. When arrested three hours after the crime she admitted her guilt.

HUNDRED KILLED

Evidence of Counter Revolution In Mexico Against Maderi.

Mexico City, July 14.—Evidence of a counter revolution against the Madero government planned, it is declared, by the Scientifices, or "reactionaries" of the Diaz regime, is professed to have been found in the sudden renewal of fighting between Maderistas and Federals in several states.

The Cientificos, it is learned, are taking advantage of the approaching elections to stir up political disturbances.

The fighting in which more than 100 were killed at Puebla a few hours before Madero's arrival in that city, is declared to have been planned by the Cientificos.

Reports from Ocotlan say that fighting has been renewed there between the adherents of rival candidates for governor. More than 50 persons are reported to have been killed in the last few days.

Say 33 Killed.

Puebla, Mexico, July 14.—Three soldiers of the Twenty-ninth battalion and a number of Maderists, estimated as high as 30, were killed and many others wounded in a battle between the two forces which raged in the streets of the city. Forty Maderists are prisoners in the barracks of the Saragoza battalion.

SAGE AND SULPHUR

Made Her Look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

State of New York, County of Monroe } ss Rochester, N. Y.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my schoolmates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphar, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

At Clark Home

The following were informally entertained by the Misses Estella and Theresa Clark at their home in Roscoe last evening. The Misses Mae and Gertrude Patterson of Piketon who are visiting here, Messrs Clyde Lorenz, Floyd Holl, Robert McCabe and Nebin Benjamin.

Q.—Why is there so much confusion existing in the world today as to the true teachings of the Scriptures?

Answer.—The study of the Scriptures, as with all other lines of investigation, must be conducted systematically, else confusion results. The Apostle Paul counsels us along this line saying, "Study to show thyself approved unto God (not unto men), rightly dividing the word of truth." Many have erred in failing to follow this rule. For instance, in reading Revelation xix, 20, some have insisted that the lake of fire and literal brimstone is a real lake filled with brimstone and fire. A mere novice should recognize the passage as highly figurative, especially in view of the fact that it states that a beast and a false prophet are to be cast into it. No thoughtful person would conclude that a real beast and false prophet are meant. Many Bible students have entirely overlooked the importance of "rightly dividing the Word." The Apostle shows that the Divine arrangement, as thus far revealed, is divided into three great dispensations or ages, referred to in our Bibles as "Worlds" (See II Peter iii). The major portion of the prophecies relate to the world or age to come, and when we strive to make them fit present evil conditions confusion results. To illustrate: If we apply the prophecy of Isaiah xxxv, 8-10 to the past or present it is meaningless, whereas it is in exact harmony with the glorious reign of the Messiah which we all know to be future. As corroborative of this manner of dividing the Word, we see that our Lord (Matt. vii, 13, 14) speaks of the present evil world as "a broad way leading to destruction" and the way to life through Christ as "a strait and narrow way," while in his great prophecy in Matthew xxv, 31-46, He confirms the prophetic statement of Isaiah.

DAILY FASHION TALKS

BY MAY MANTON

AN ATTRACTIVE GOWN FOR MORNING WEAR.

MORNING gowns that are made with jackets are always comfortable and satisfactory. This one is rendered dressy by means of the big collar and is in every way attractive, as well as practical. It is finished with a peplum that dispenses with all bulk over the hips. The skirt is plain and seven gored. It can be finished with habit back or inverted plaits. This one is cut off at the natural waist line and attached to a belt, but if the skirt is to be utilized in combination with a blouse, in place of the jacket, it can be extended above the waist line, if preferred. Ring dotted batiste is the material illustrated and the trimming is simple banding, but such gowns as this can be made from any simple seasonable material. For immediate wear, washable fabrics are those in demand, but the model is just as desirable for challis, albatross and the like, of cooler weather.

For the medium size the jacket will require 3½ yards of material 27 inches wide, 2½ yards 36 or 2⅛ yards 44 inches wide, with 2½ yards of banding and 3 yards of edging; for the skirt will be needed 6¾ yards 27, 3¾ yards 36 or 3¼ yards 44 inches wide if material has no up and down but if there is figure or nap 5½ yards 36 or 5¾ yards 44 inches wide will be needed with 2¼ yards of banding for the trimming.

A May Manton pattern of the jacket or negligee, No. 7029, sizes 34 to 44 inches bust, or of the skirt, No. 0955, sizes 22 to 34 waist, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents for each.

WHO'LL ASK FOR THIS MONEY?

30,000 aged and disabled Civil War veterans in Soldiers' Homes are being starved, because nobody asks Congress for enough money to feed them. Think of that! Think of 30,000 crippled heroes allowed to go hungry by a nation which annually distributes $150,000,000 to other war pensioners, many of whom never even saw the war. That is what the political pensioners get. Look at what the actual veterans get: meals to eat which cost five cents —jail fare is better; mattresses to sleep on which are eighteen years old—and cost six dollars when new; rules to live by which expel them for slight mistakes—after expulsion some have died within sight of the gates. Think of that when you celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the war's beginning. Think of the real veterans of that war's being cruelly mistreated, and actually starved, because nobody will ask for enough money to care for them. Think of it! The Homes are beautiful on the outside, but look inside. The whole story is in Pearson's Magazine now on sale. Read it. You'll feel like asking for that money yourself.

The same issue contains a clear explanation of the Initiative Referendum and Recall—an explanation of what this movement is doing and may do. Governor Hadley tells how the poor of cities may get farms of their own. Billy Evans, American League umpire, gives a bully good baseball story—a story of famous disputed plays, showing how umpires look upon players and fans. The danger of eating or letting your children eat cheap candy and ice cream is explained in another story, which shows also how to distinguish between good sweets and bad sweets. The men who made the first automobiles are the subject of another article, and for other entertainment that is entertainment

TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL COSHOCTON

MURDER FOR MURDER

Widespread attention has been called in this country and Canada to the case of Mrs Angelina Napolitano who is condemned to die August 7 for the murder of her husband. It not only emphasizes the fact of the speed and inflexibility of Canadian courts but it also serves to remind us that the world is smaller than it used to be and that the cry of humanity is heard by more people now than ever before and that it falls on more responsive ears

The material facts involved in the murder are not in dispute That Mrs Napolitano killed her husband while he lay in a drunken stupor is admitted The crime was a revolting one and with the customary expedition of British justice the woman was brought to speedy trial and a verdict of murder in the first degree was secured Her sentence to execution on the above date followed almost immediately

For three months numerous individuals and other agencies throughout Canada and this country have been making vigorous protest against the execution of the sentence Thousands upon thousands of letters have poured in on the Canadian department of justice and Governor General Earl Grey personally asking either for a commutation of sentence or an outright pardon for the woman

The basis of the appeal for clemency would appear to be sufficient She has four little children and is about to become a mother for the fifth time The birth of the fifth child is expected between now and the end of the month or in other words she will no sooner have brought the child in to the world and nourished it until she will be hung

The man she killed was not only a drunken wretch who refused to contribute to the support of his wife and children but he actually [illegible] her and broke her teeth in his efforts to [illegible] He had already attempted to kill her and [illegible] and abject slavery [illegible] last he had warned her on pain of death not to be caught near the house when he awoke In desperation the woman lingered around until certain that her husband was unconscious and then killed him as he slept

Governor Marshall of Indiana and many other notable Americans have joined the letter writers in requesting that the woman's life be spared [illegible]

Trouserettes For Girl Tennis Player Allow Free Movement

GIRL athletes have long complained about being hampered by skirts, and there have been various suggestions for a garb that would allow more freedom of movement and at the same time conform with ideas of modesty. Bloomers in one form or another or divided skirts of some type have been worn by most basketball teams, and when bicycling was the craze a few years ago this style of garb was quite common as it permitted the wearer to ride the diamond frame, that style of frame being much more rigid and therefore safer than the drop frame. Above is shown a style of raiment designed for girl tennis players. The photograph shows clearly the appearance of the garment, which is made of blue serge. With it a shirt waist is worn. Its attractiveness will depend largely on the personality of the wearer.

PAINT IS CLOTHING

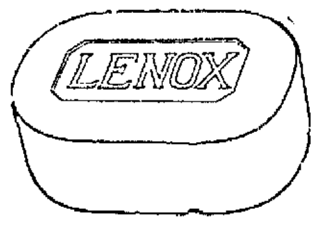

Paint protects wood just as a garment protects a man. When a man's clothing wears thin personal comfort prompts him to renew it. Wood has no voice and no sensation but it suffers when its clothing becomes inadequate to protect it. Having no voice it suffers in silence and in the end the owner learns too late that it would have paid him well to spend the cent in advance to save the dollar in the end. Just as it pays to buy good clothes so also does it pay to use good paint because it is the cheapest in the end.

Easy to Make a Gun.

The ameer of Afghanistan once started a gun factory of which he was very proud and placed it under the supervision of a smart Yankee who could keep his business to himself. Ameer Khan, one of the ameer's chiefs, came in to see the factory one day. The Yankee showed him around, and at the end of the inspection Ameer Khan said:

"This looks very simple. Now tell me just how to make a gun, and I will set up a factory in my own province on my return home."

"It looks simple," said the Yankee, "and it is simple. To build a gun you make a hole first; then you wrap some iron around it, and there you are."

Ameer Khan shook his head. "Ah," he said, "there is plenty of air for the hole in my province, but how the iron should be wrapped around it is a thing none of my people know."

Bruce at Bannockburn.

Robert Bruce was the descendant of a Norman. He was half an Englishman and half a Scotchman, and by his mother's side he was a claimant to the Scottish crown. After many daring adventures and rude perils, borne up throughout by strong perseverring conscience and an ardent love of liberty, Bruce was able to get together a patriotic army to meet the English at Bannockburn in 1314. Before the battle began the Scottish army knelt down in prayer. Edward II was looking on. He turned to his favorite knight and said: "Argentine, the rebels yield. They beg for mercy." "They do, my liege," the reply was, "but not from you."

The battle ended not only in a victory, but in a feast.—Samuel Smiles' "Duty."

Glittering Pageant When King George Rode to His Coronation

Photos copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

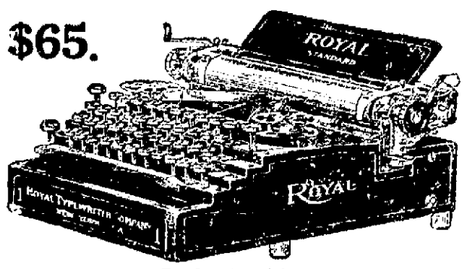

EIGHT horses were used to draw the state coach in which King George and Queen Mary went to and from their coronation in Westminster abbey. In the picture above this royal equipage is shown proceeding along the Mall with the king and queen wearing the crowns that had just been adjusted and trying to look as if they enjoyed it and were accustomed to the pomp and ceremony. In the other picture King George, seated beside Queen Mary, is shown as he received the gold vessel from the lord mayor of London. This ceremony, which took place at Temple Bar, signified that the king had received the freedom of the city, in this case meaning the city of London proper, a comparatively small portion of the London of today. The king merely touched the hilt of the sword as a token that he had accepted it, and it remained in the custody of the lord mayor.

The Week End Visit and Its Requirements

AN INEXPENSIVE WEEK END OUTFIT

WHEN one may run out of town over Sunday accompanied by a maid, a costume trunk, a hat trunk and a smart dressing bag the week end stay presents few problems. One's maid simply puts all the clothes that might possibly be needed in the roomy costume trunk and the capacious hat trunk, and one's immediate requirements for a dainty toilet are carried in the dressing bag.

The over Sunday visitor who must carry all her belonging in a suit case, or, at best, send them by express in a small trunk not calculated to arouse astonishment or protest in her hostess or take up all the space in a pretty little bungalow guest room—hers is a problem worthy of the name. It may rain, and it may shine. There may be a motoring party. Very likely there will be a dance. Yet ordinary wearables for morning and afternoon must be crowded in.

If there is a special set of lingerie for week end visiting use, soft and fine as a cobweb, it will take up almost no room in the suit case, and tennis shoes, white canvas pumps and evening slippers may be packed around the edge. In the center should be laid the gowns, and in this day of filmy materials three may be carried—an evening gown for the dinner and dance sure to be arranged; something fresh and dainty for mornings, which may be used for tennis or golf is necessary, and a graceful tea gown.

One of the illustrations shows a smart tailored suit of white mohair with a shawl collar of black and white silk. Such a suit would be suitable for country club wear, driving or wear to church on the Sunday. It could be worn on the train, covered up by a smart topcoat which would answer for motoring use during the week end stay. Of course for traveling dark shoes and gloves would be substituted for the white ones carried in the suit case. The pretty hat could also be protected by a chiffon veil.

The evening gown illustrated is of pink charmeuse, over which is a tunic of crystal beads. Above this in turn is a chemisette of heliotrope chiffon weighted with jet beads. The wide sash is of pink satin matching the skirt, and in the decolletage is a tucker of gathered pink chiffon. With this gown is shown a reticule intended for bridge winnings. This is of course a very handsome dinner and evening gown, and the average woman running out of town for an over Sunday stay would require something much simpler—perhaps a little chiffon frock or a pretty lingerie dress of voile or embroidered batiste.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

LANGTRY TASTE

SOME exceedingly beautiful gowns and coats representing the latest fashions for the coming season were specially designed and made by Paquin for Mrs. Langtry (Lady de Bathe) to wear in the revival of "The Sins of Society" at Drury Lane theater, London. These gowns were of such charming description that they cannot fail to interest lovers of smart dressing, in which no woman on the stage quite approaches the Jersey Lily.

One of the gowns was made in soft black satin, with a long train cut in the new pointed shape. Over this was worn a tunic of emerald green mousseline de sole embroidered for a considerable distance below the waist in a mixture of white and black jet bugles intermingled with fine steel and crystal embroidery. The bodice was arranged with a chemisette of fine silver lace and draped on one side with black ninon de sole and on the other with green chiffon. A long sash of silver tissues finished the bodice at the back, lightly veiled with black ninon.

A very handsome evening frock of orange satin was draped and partly veiled with vieux bleu chiffon, while on one side only of the bodice and skirt was a wonderful embroidery worked in many shades of silver and pale blue and outlined with pearls. This embroidery encircles the waist and forms a deep point on the front of the skirt. One sleeve was of white lace veiled lightly with black chiffon, while the other was of orange satin. With this lovely gown Mrs. Langtry wore a long cloak of black soft satin, with a yoke of dull gold embroidery worked on black chiffon lined with white.

A very charming afternoon frock was worn by Mrs. Langtry in the first act. It was carried out in lavender blue soft ribbon, finished on one side with a bow and long ends, in satin. Long scarf draperies of chiffon in a deeper shade of blue were caught up on one side with a cockade rosette of blue satin ribbon, while the bodice was becomingly arranged with draperies of biscuit colored chiffon and ivory white Venetian lace.

In the race scene in the second act Mrs. Langtry appeared in a striking gown of white crepe meteore, the skirt of which was almost entirely covered with two very deep flounces of pale ecru Mechlin lace. One side of the bodice and the upper part of the skirt were arranged with a handkerchief drapery of crepe meteore bordered with hemstitching and caught in at the waist with a sash of pale pink satin ribbon, finished on one side with a bow and long ends. In the same act a dainty little frock of pale blue and white striped silk gauze was worn, the hem of the skirt bordered with Irish lace and the waist finished with a sash of white charmeuse knotted on the left side. The bodice of this gown had a large square collar of black tulle with a white tulle border.

Yet another very charming frock was worn in the last act, carried out in crepe de chine chosen in a lovely shade of vieux rose. The skirt was trimmed with three deep tucks of vieux rose chiffon, while the bodice was draped in fichu fashion from both shoulders and finished at the waist with a sash of vieux rose chiffon hemmed and bordered with black tulle.

There is some talk of Mrs. Langtry making a tour of America in the near future.

WHITE MOHAIR TAILORED DRESS

DAINTY in style is the little walking costume of white mohair, a Worth creation, with the correctness and refinement which distinguish everything that comes from the house of Worth. The skirt, with stitched down panels at front and back, barely escapes the ground, and the little hip length jacket is made very chic by the trimming bands which, placed rather high on the straight coat, suggest an empire waist line. These trimming bands, the cuffs and the square sailor collar are of the new Erin green shade closely soutached with white. The buttons on the coat are of whitewood with green metal rims. With this dainty white and green suit goes a black hat with clouds of airy black tulle massed on the crown. A cabochon ornament of green and gold placed on the brim adds a touch of vivid color that harmonizes with the green on the white mohair suit.

The Coronation Carriage

IT will make for the brightness of all parks if, as seems probable, the afternoon drive is again made an institution. Queen Mary is credited with the intention of taking a daily drive in Hyde park during the season in company with her daughter or her youngest boys, and her presence will, of course, be the magnet that will draw all fashionable London round the park during the summer months. The fact, too, that the queen will drive must bring the horsed carriage more into evidence than the motor, and this will make a great difference in the appearance of the park. What is fashionable in London is soon taken up in New York and thence passed on to other cities.

The state coach in which King George and Queen Mary drove when they went to open their first parliament and in which, all being well, they will drive in the coronation procession in June is the most beautiful state carriage in Europe.

With its size, its glittering glass, its vast amount of gold, its beautifully painted panels and its eight cream colored horses, it looks a veritable fairy coach, the sort of gorgeous equipage in which the fairy tale princes and princesses of our childhood were wont to drive.

For nearly a century and a half it has carried English monarchs to parliament and to their coronations, for it was built in 1761 in the reign of George III.

When in state procession it rolls [illegible] on its way, people hold their breath, stand on tiptoe to catch a glimpse of the king and queen behind its glittering panels, but few have time to realize its beauty or take in its details.

In design and decoration it is a [illegible] carriage for a sailor king like George V, for Neptune and the Tritons figure [illegible] in it.

The panels are real works of art and were painted by the famous [illegible] Cipriani.

When the coach was built it cost [illegible] but its value has [illegible] times since then. [illegible] was it built that not until the coronation of King Edward did it [illegible] the state coach.

Then, among other alterations, the wooden axles were taken out and steel ones substituted.

The state coach weighs no less than four tons, but, in spite of this huge weight, it is so lightly hung on the great C springs that a child could easily push it backward and forward.

The carriage and body of the coach are composed of four large Tritons, and they support it on braces covered with red morocco leather.

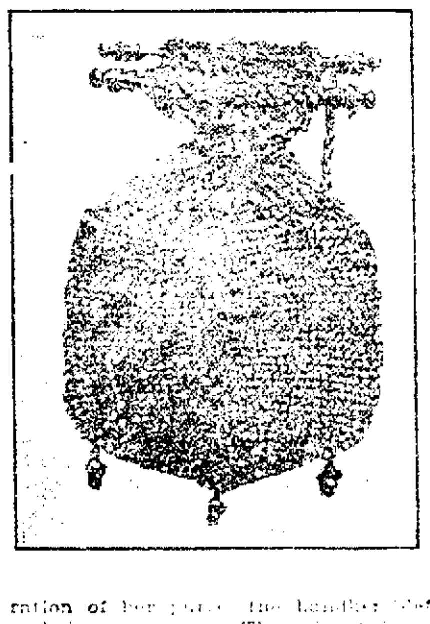

In the body of the coach there are eight palm trees, which, branching out at the top, support the roof.

In the center of the roof stand three boys representing England, Scotland and Ireland. They support the crown of Great Britain and hold in their hands the scepter, the sword of state and the insignia of knighthood.

Inside the coach is as gorgeous as it is without, for it is lined with scarlet embossed velvet and is beautifully painted and gilded.

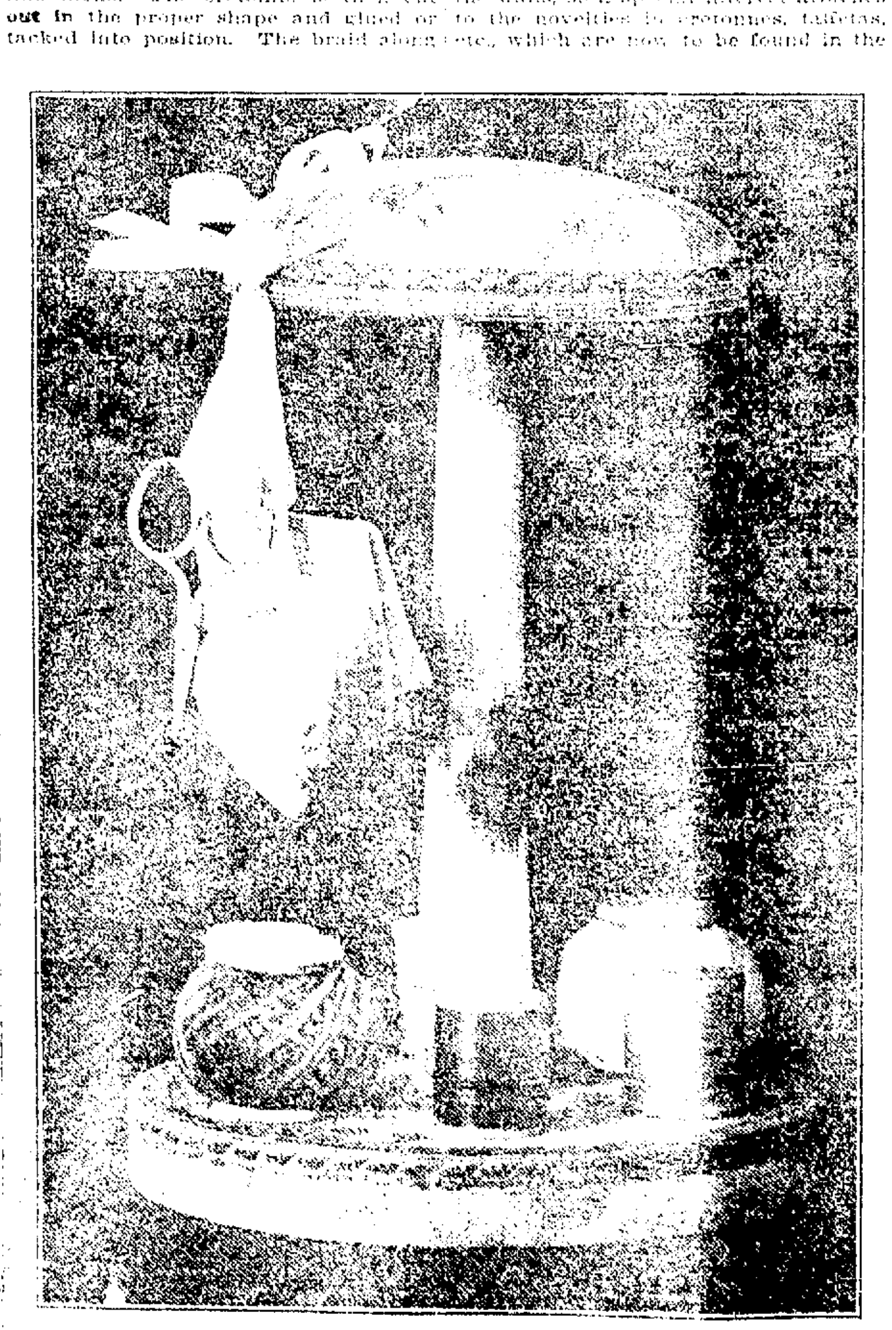

BEADED BAGS

BEADS, jet spangles and bugles of all kinds being so prominent a feature of the season's trimmings, it is natural that the smart woman should have turned to similar effects for the decoration of her purse, the handbag [illegible] and the opera bag. These beaded designs for [illegible] are sometimes woven or they may be made by applying the beads to a piece of lace or net, threading them into place with a fine needle and silk thread. Pattern may be traced on a piece of tissue paper, which can be tacked to the back of the net and torn away when the beads have all been fastened into place. The illustration shows a pretty theater bag or evening bag. It may be made large enough to accommodate only the opera glasses or wide enough to hold a fan, extra handkerchief, powder puff or anything of that sort.

PINCUSHION AND WORK STAND

CRETONNE and braid give this graceful pincushion and work stand its attractive appearance. The foundation is of wood padded with cotton. Over this a thin covering of cheese cloth or muslin is fastened with very fine tacks. The cretonne is then cut out in the proper shape and glued or tacked into position. The braid along the edges is put into place last. Then scissors, needle, thimble case and spools are added to the stand.

Cretonne occupies a favored position among the upholstery and decorating fabrics of the season. In fancy work it is just as modish as ever for all sorts of bags, for covering shirt waist boxes, glove, veil, handkerchief and jewel boxes and as coverings for screens, photograph frames, etc.

New covers for chairs and sofas, curtains and fancy work will completely transform the appearance of a room even if it is not possible to redecorate the walls, so a special interest attaches to the novelties in cretonnes, taffetas, etc., which are now to be found in the furnishing departments of the big stores.

Ready made curtains with fancy borders are very fashionable this season, and some particularly pretty ones are made of woven "tussore" cloth in cream and pale shades of green, blue and pink, with handsome borders in those quaint old fashioned chintz colorings that harmonize so well with antique furniture. Equally attractive are the curtains in cream spotted taffetas with an applique border of large clusters of pink roses, with either green or blue ribbons. A complete set of draperies to match can be had in this pretty design, as there are table covers, mantel draperies and cushion cases. The appliques can also be applied to bedspreads and valances.

A handsome cretonne in rich colorings suitable for a room that is constantly in use has a "Jaspe" ground very well covered with all sorts of fruit designs, including pears, apples, plums and cherries, so it will tone with almost any scheme of furnishing. Another new design is equally well covered and has birds, flowers and foliage printed in their natural colors.

For a drawing room, boudoir or dainty bedroom there is a charming cretonne with a cream ground and a very delicate shadow design of garlands of flowers and foliage tied with either blue or pink ribbon. The Wedgwood cretonne is a clever reproduction of the famous pottery, with groups of white figures on oval medallions on either a blue, pink or green "Jaspe" ground.

Some exceedingly handsome cretonnes are made with lovely floral designs in bright colorings on a black or very dark chocolate brown ground, and some very rich printed furnishing velvets have birds and flowers on a neutral ground, which are as effective as they are novel in coloring and design.

COIFFURE HINTS

No matter to which side our taste may incline or whether we feel disposed to vote for the picturesque head "running over with curls," the quaint demureness of the early Victorian center parting or the severely classic swathing of straight strands of hair bound closely round the head this season, we shall find coiffures to our taste.

Without exception the new transformations and toupees are of the most attractive and fascinating description, carried out as they are in hair of the finest quality procurable, which has practically no weight at all and which from the fact that it is naturally wavy and curly will remain entirely unaffected by rain, sea air, fog or any kind of dampness in the atmosphere. The many advantages of naturally wavy hair which will withstand these adverse conditions must be self evident.

ANKLES IN EVIDENCE.

Ankles are much in evidence, skirts being shorter than ever for the day, and in the evening the circumference of the skirt and the mere wisp of a train make the feet details to be reckoned with, the result of this being that much attention is bestowed upon shoes. Pale blue kid and cerise kid are alike in evidence, with very small silver buckles for their adornment and silk stockings to match for their completion. In the daytime mole gray cloth or antelope with black patent leather or calf vamps are seen on smartly shod feet.

THE IDEAL SERVANT

A WOMAN who knows says that the way to get a suitable servant is to make up your mind the kind of maid you want and then look for her perseveringly. Never be satisfied or give up until you get her.

For this you will need energy, perseverance and patience. The first will inspire you to advertise without ceasing, the second will prevent you from growing weary in so doing, and the third will bring you in peace to the end.

You must not imagine for a moment that a "treasure" will fall into your lap. You must look for her.

You must not be zealous one day and faint hearted the next. You must worry, worry, worry all the time. You must not mind because you have to wait. In your heart must be faith, in your eye the vision.

And the reward? It will come in due season. Just the sort of maid you want is looking for your sort of place. The difficulty is that you have not met. There is no demand in the world which the world is not able to supply. Waiting, watching, your opportunity will come. Seize it (or her); you may never get another.

To get a servant who suits you is not to dip your hand into a lucky bag. It is to make a careful choice. Experience is the best guide, but energy and a grim determination will almost take its place.

That is all. There you have the whole business in a nutshell. And of course you knew it all before. But think how few people servant hunt in this manner, and then do not wonder that they do not get a servant who suits them. They do not know what they want, and if they do they do not trouble to look for it. They bring neither energy, patience nor perseverence to the task.
